Blood Donors Encouraged By Veterans

Plasma Benefits To Wounded Men Shown in Talks

By D. E. WILLERTON

"Remember this, that the blood your body can remake in 48 hours is going to mean that another Canadian who is fighting your war will not be miserable for the rest of his life because of the loss of a limb. There are hundreds of soldiers who are alive and back from overseas today who would be buried in India, Africa, Belgium, or France were it not for men like yourselves. You can save a life," announced Flt./Lt. John Keller in an address to members of the COTC yesterday.

This was one of three addresses given by veterans at McGill on behalf of the Blood Donors Drive now being held at this University. The addresses were given at 11 a.m. to members of the COTC by Flt./Lt. Keller, at 5 p.m. at the Compulsory Health Lectures for first and second year Arts and Science students by Major E. D. E. Hoskin, and at 8 p.m. to another contingent of the COTC by Hume Wright, an ex-Captain in the Canadian Army.

Italians Donate

Stressing the need for blood for the wounded overseas, Flt.-Lt. Keller pointed out that every day, each one of us has to make all kind of decisions—decisions which sometimes turn out wrong, ones which we are not sure how they are going to turn out, and ones which we know to be right. The decision to give your blood so that someone may live can only be a right one. If you are in doubt of this, the Flight-Lieutenant continued, "I ask you to consider the fact that at this moment, Italians in Italy, our enemies of the summer before last, are now making blood donations to save lives of injured Allied men."

The facts of the case were expressed by Flt.-Lt. Keller, when he noted that it takes three donations to make one transfusion, that is "for every life saved due to blood plasma, (approximately 15 transfusions)—there is required 45 donations."

Major Hoskin

Major Hoskin, speaking to the Health class, told of his own experiences where he saw wounded men lying in the open in Italy (where weather conditions are bad and men who are wounded suffer shock pretty severely) who received no medical attention for 3 or 4 days. He, himself, had his right leg blown off, and it was 13 hours before he received any medical attention. Nine bottles of plasma were

To Be Chosen Nov. 17

The executive of the McGill Camera Club announced that the winner of the "Photo-of-The-Month" competition for the month of November will be chosen at their next meeting which will be held Friday, Nov. 17. All entries should be brought in at the meeting. Photographs submitted should be no smaller than 5 in. x 7 in. and no larger than 11 in. x 14 in. mounted or unmounted.

The competition is open only to members of the Camera Club, however those securing membership at this meeting may qualify, the executive stated.

War Council Meeting in Union Today

Year's Program To Be Outlined By Jack Pye

An educational meeting of the Students' War Council will take place today at 5.15 in the Union Ballroom for the purpose of "explaining to all members of the whole Students' War Council, the aims, functions, and plans of the war council, based upon its activities during the past few years." Jack Pye, president of the war council, will outline plans for the coming year. Arrangements for this meeting were made two weeks ago when the first meeting of the war council was held Oct. 25. At this and the two meetings which followed requests have been made by members for a detailed outline of the coming year's program. The meeting to be held tomorrow will deal with this question as well as with the program of the Students' War Council in previous years.

At the end of the meeting a discussion period will be held where members will ask questions of the executive, discuss points brought up, and offer suggestions and criticism.

Johnstone to Address Cosmo Club Luncheon

Mrs. Nora W. Johnstone will address the Cosmo Club in the fourth of its series of weekly luncheon meetings to be held in the Union Ballroom today. The subject of her talk will be "France before the Nazi Occupation."

Tables in the Grill Room will be reserved for those desiring to lunch. At 1.30 pm the party will adjourn to the Ballroom to hear the address.

Mrs. Johnstone, who is a student in second year Architecture, escaped from France two days before the Nazi occupation of Paris.

The meeting will be over in plenty of time for the students to attend 2 o'clock lectures, a member of the executive stated.

McGill Veterans To Donate Blood To Red Cross

Committee Heads Segal, Noble, McKay Elected at Meeting

Committees covering rehabilitation, education and entertainment were elected at a meeting of the McGill Student Veterans' Society held last night in the grill room of the Union.

It was decided that the group as a whole would visit the Red Cross Monday, November 13, at 6.15 p.m., to make blood donations. Henry Marcovitz, secretary, emphasized the vital need for all veterans to register for this blood donation, and that all those who have not already signified their intention should contact him at some time during the remainder of the week.

Details regarding liaison between the Dominion government Veterans Welfare division and the Society were presented, most important of which was that all veterans attending McGill who have been paid from October 2, will be paid an extra amount retroactive from October 2, to September 28. Problems regarding veterans who are receiving government benefits and at the same time intend to do part time work, were clarified. Officials of the Welfare division indicated that veterans could do part time work as long as they did not pay unemployment insurance. Money earned on the campus is limited by a $40 per month maximum, while returns from investments cannot exceed $20. Any earnings above the foregoing amounts would be deducted proportionally from the veteran's benefit.

Regarding payments at Christmas it was announced that forms would be available at the Registrar's office in which each veteran will indicate whether he will be employed during the Christmas holidays.

Cosmos Discuss Effects of War

Student Viewpoint Said Predominant In Conclusions

Last night the Cosmopolitan Club met for the first of its weekly series of discussions in the home of Peter Hall. The topic of the evening was the effect of the war upon Canadian youth, and the subject was approached largely from the point of view of University students.

The three principal approaches to the question dealt with the extent to which wartime conditions had affected young people, both in the armed forces and in civilian life, the adequacy of government plans for rehabilitation, and a study of the work being done by the stu-

Peterson Winner Of Bovey Shield In Annual Event

Trotter, Runner-up; Campbell, Rosenfeld, Third, Fourth Places

Joan Peterson, B.Sc. 1, is the winner of the Bovey Shield; and Florence Trotter, B.A. 2, is the runner-up, in the annual Bovey Shield Contest held Monday, November 6, in the Union Music Room. I. D. Campbell, B.Sc. 2, and Ina Malca Rosenfeld, B.Com. 1, took third and fourth places respectively.

Joan Peterson chose the negative of the topic: "Should freshman hazing be abolished?" while Florence Trotter spoke for the affirmative. Of the sixteen contestants, four were for the abolition of hazing the others were for its retention in its present form but all were opposed to more extreme methods of initiation.

The judges of the debate were Dr. Kathleen Terroux of the department of Zoology, Mr. John Dando, of the English Department, and Charles Wassermann, B.A. 4. The main criticism of the judges was that they found a lack of

Election of Women's President To Take Place This Morning; Ebbitt, Watson Contest Position

SOCIAL WELFARE CLASS

The Thursday Evening Class in Social Welfare will meet tonight at 8 o'clock at the School for Social Workers, 3600 University Street. A movie entitled "Tom Jordan" will be shown.

Voting Booths Will Be Located In Major Faculty Bldgs., RVC

Voting for the position of President of the Women's Union will take place this morning from 8.50 a.m. to 1 p.m. May Ebbitt, 4th year Arts, and 'Scotty' Watson, 4th year Science, are the candidates.

Polling booths will be located in the Arts, Biology, and Medical Buildings, and in Royal Victoria College. In accordance with the regulations passed by the election committee this year, students in Arts, Commerce and Graduate Nursing will vote in the common room of the Arts Building. At the entrance to the Biology Building there will be a polling station for students in Science, Architecture and Engineering. Physical Education and School for Teachers students will vote in RVC where a booth will be placed by the entrance to the dining room. The Medical Building voting station will be used by students in Medicine and Physiotherapy, and will be placed at the University street entrance.

Presidential Candidates

May Ebbitt

The Women's Union has come a long way since those days back in the early 1900's when it was known as the R.V.C. Undergraduates Society. Behind it is a long tradition for organization and leadership among the women students of McGill.

I believe in carrying on in that tradition, and in building on the past.

Now, before I give you my plans, I want to say this. I believe in making promises, promises that can be kept, and I believe in keeping them.

And these are some of the promises which I can make to you.

First, I promise to work with the other members of the executive to carry on the fine work of the Women's Union in the past . . . by supporting the M.W.S.A.A. and the numerous clubs and activities which depend to some extent on the Women's Union. The art exhibit in the Common Room, for instance.

And I promise to support the War Council and the War Services of the University.

In the work of rehabilitation, women will be able to play a major role. I would like to bring some of the significant figures in public and international life, many of whom visit Montreal each year, to meet the women students informally here in the Common Room. University women have a very great and rare privilege. From among

Eng. Debating Society Meets Today at 5

The Engineering Undergraduate Debating Society will hold its first meeting this year this afternoon at 5 o'clock in Room 35 of the Engineering building. The Debating Society was allowed to lapse for several years and was revived only last year by the Engineering student body.

The first general meeting has on its agenda the discussion of debates and their possible topics for the coming season. The position of Secretary-Treasurer has been vacated during the summer and is also expected to be filled this afternoon.

A debate for next week is scheduled and all necessary arrangements will be discussed at the meeting.

All students interested are welcomed by the executive and a special invitation is extended to all freshmen and freshettes.

Scotty Watson

In presenting my platform I do not aim to make hollow promises and present radical reforms, as the Women's Union is founded upon the traditions and experiences of past years. It is an organization which has developed through the years, to which each President, each executive, and in fact each student has contributed. Its traditions are sound and as such must be respected. If elected I merely intend to fortify some of its aspects and to give it a sound administration. I should aim to think of the Women's Union not only in terms of its activity for one year, but with an eye to the future which lies ahead of us, in an effort to continue the work which has already been done in making the Women's Union a vital organization on the campus.

AIMS: All women students, who pay the university fees, automatically become members of the Women's Union and through it of the Student's Society. Each member should be made to realize the responsibility which this membership entails. I propose, through greater publicity and with the cooperation of the executives, and the class representatives to educate the women students in the workings of the Union that they might show greater interest in the activities of all the organizations sponsored and financially supported by it.

SLC Meeting To Discuss Japanese Discrimination

A special open membership meeting has been announced by the executive of the Student Labor Club in the Union Grill Room, Thurs., Nov. 9, at 5.15 P.M., to discuss the Senate ruling 'excluding Canadian students of Japanese origin from the University.'

The club has invited Miss Betty Kobayashi, well-known Canadian-Japanese anti-fascist, to explain "the position of the second generation Canadian Japanese across the country." Miss Kobayashi was previously a student at McGill, and represented R.V.C. in the Students Council.

"Democratically-minded students are greatly disturbed by this danger to the democratic right of all Canadian students to attend institutions of learning," states the S.L.C. call to the

WOMEN STUDENTS

You have not only a right to vote in today's elections, you have a duty. These elections will decide who will handle your student affairs this year.

There is no one who cannot spare the time to vote. But if you fail to vote, you will have no right to object to the student government you get.

You have seen the platforms—choose carefully the woman you think best suited and vote for her. But above all—VOTE.

TEE DRAYTON,
Chairman of Elections

All members of the Women's Union, that is, all students who have registered at Royal Victoria College, are eligible to vote. If a name is not on the list, voters are expected to check with the Women's Union Executive.

Newman Alumni Sponsor Dance

Jack Roff Orchestra And Community Sing Featured at Affair

Plans for the Newman Club Alumni Dance to be held in Union Ballroom on Friday, November 24 have just been released by the executive.

Events of the evening will include a Community Sing, when the committee will attempt to revive the Old McGill spirit by featuring the popular campus songs. A Public Address System has been obtained and music for the occasion will be supplied by Jack Roff and a ten piece orchestra.

Dancing, the executive stated, will commence at 9 p.m. There will be a brief intermission after which the Community Singing will be featured, and Terpsichorean activity will then be resumed until 1 a.m. The committee in charge of the evening's program wishes it stressed that undergraduates of the University will be especially welcome to the dance. "The main idea in throwing the dance open to undergraduates," they stated, "is in line with the aims of the Alumni in sponsoring closer relations between Graduates and Undergraduates."

Concluding, the executive said that tickets for the dance will be available from the keymen in the various faculties at a cost of fifty cents each.

Canadian Youth Commission
TORONTO VARSITY

The C.Y.C. is composed of a highly representative group of some fifty Canadian citizens, of different religious faiths and political creeds, drawn together by a common interest in youth and its problems. The life of the Commission is two years, and during that time the Commission intends to investigate the present plans to deal with the post-war problems of youth as proposed by the various youth movements and organizations, and to consult the attitude of youth itself. Through the medium of committees composed of experts in many lines, they will formulate a policy of their own, and suggest improvements to the existing plans regarding the problems. They strive to provoke discussion and thought on the special questions, as widely as possible, and have suggestions on the policies formulated come from the youthful stratum of society. Finally, at the end of the two years, in which time its studies and recommendations will have been completed, the Commission intends to submit a report to the Federal Government so that legislative action may be taken on the results of this detailed investigation into the matter.

A National Students' Council
SASKATCHEWAN SHEAF

In March of this year, the students of this University elected enthusiastically a new president of the Students' Representative Council. His support was mainly due to his proposal to establish firmly a nation-wide Students' Council which would represent all universities in Canada. This council was intended to make these many thousands of young minds, the selected of the millions in the Dominion, able to work and plan as one, not only for the benefit of the small sphere of society which forms University life, but for the guidance and benefit of all Canada.

What Is a University Education?
DALHOUSIE GAZETTE

Within easy access of us all, is the opportunity for study and research. This academic seriousness should, needless to say, be the framework of our university activity. We should conscientiously apply ourselves to our particular branches of study, realizing that as we acquire some modicum of intellectual reasoning, we are being reinforced for our embarkation on the troubled waters of a troubled world.

But, while the "academic" is important, so too is the "extra-curricular" — although its contribution to educational training is often underestimated. Leadership, organizational ability and self-confidence are essential qualities which can be gained through participation in the athletic and social life of the university. For, to be fully prepared to cope with the endless problems of life, we must first acquire that "universality" of mind, which extends far beyond strict academic pursuits.

Selection by Scholarships
TORONTO VARSITY

Universal education would merely add to the numbers of intellectuals graduating already from university. The little learning which people, who are not interested in education, receive, would indeed be a dangerous thing. Future planning must allow for the education of each person in accordance with his taste and abilities. The full realization of human poten-

The Column

—Harry Garfinkle

This column was touched off by a drawing lesson. After trying for an hour to draw the model with some resemblance to her actual appearance, I felt I owed her a debt for the mess I made. A debt that I could not really repay, as she was a beautiful model; even the girls said "cute".

Proportioned by a piece of charcoal, she first appeared. A fink, a spark, a flick, a wink and still she did not disappear, but sat there dressed in a gypsy skirt of golden multicoloured diamond patterns, with a fringe of purple hanging low. With a Zigeuner necklace coiled about her, and her blouse open freely at the neck, she was young and fired with exhilaration.

What did she think of as she sat up there, queen of all eyes, the object of all creativity in that room? I laugh as I think back to the stereotyped thoughts I ascribed to her, or rather the character I made out for her: Van Gogh's model and nagging wife, Saroyan's model at Magnin's stop-over hotel; when in all reality she was smiling at the comments of the class and not feeling at all sad or fatigued, as she would be in the story-books. But then I did not know all this until after the lessons when, pouff! she turned out to be a simple pleasant, young and interesting person.

And so I say again, "Alas! I'm not an artist whose delicate outline can speak a language, that words only batter to frustration in an attempt to illustrate." And when you ask me, "But what was she like?" I can only answer, "Fair, like strange music, and the dream-reverie that you cannot recall; nameless and distant, yet present within..." and repeat anew, each time some vision is converted into beauty, the message of Astrea to the Greeks of yore,—"Beauty is Simplicity!"; and dedicate her poem to each new inspiration.

The Revelation of Astrea

"You are a poet," she hesitantly said.
"Would you write a poem for me?"

Unnaming her real want,
Yet wanting with all her longing
The love poured out
Within the hostels of the dirty streets,
She asked me to reveal the truth.

And I, in full awareness of her lack,
Yet dared not negate her spoken query, or
Satisfy her love and equate it to her quest.
Turning away I left her troubled presence
And sat down alone to meditate
In hope of finding resolution.
I mocked myself in this evasion
Until the night chill came and roused me.
Then, slowly rising from the ground,
I gazed up into the sky
To see Astrea with her crown of stars
Beckoning to me.

"Star Maiden" I cried,
"You who were last to quit the earth,
"You of whom the chroniclers recorded,
"One daughter had Zeus, consort of Themis,
Who ever remained unsullied and pure.
No bronze spangle disgraced her body;
No iron ornament pierced her ear.
And from her glowing sheen
Lustrous no rings of silver,
Or pendants of gold,
Artificed with diamond-precious stones.
In simplicity she lived her earthly life."

"Astrea what do you recall of Truth?
"What can you reveal to me
"To serve..."

... and I was conversing with Astrea by my side.

My words flowed on, while she,
Softly, with mute understanding and undisturbing motion,
And with movements chaste and fine,
To quick to raise the fevers of unrest,
Dropped the mantle from her shoulder blades
And stepped forth:
Implicitly reincarnate;
And as quickly eluded all reality
And advanced to memory again.

And I held there in silent reverence
Could not dispel my awe, nor
Recall the revelation I had seen
For fear its holy breathing
Would destroy me with its utterance.

I had a poem and could not write it.
How could I impart it all?

Time and Tide

Linguistics

This is one of the classic stories of all time. It is not one of the best, but it is certainly one of the undeniable classics. It concerns two gentlemen who had the temerity to wander into a Paris restaurant (in the pre-war days)—temerity because neither of them could speak a word of French.

Being resourceful fellows, however, they worked out a scheme whereby they might at least get along: they would listen carefully to the orders given at neighbouring tables, and order phonetically as soon as they saw what the waiter brought in response.

"Garçon! De l'eau, s'il vous plaît!" said a nearby diner. The waiter brought a rather ornate glass decanter full of colourless, clear fluid. "Garçon! De l'eau, s'il vous plaît!" they echoed as the waiter came by. "Où, messieurs, certain," he replied, and in a few moments their table also was graced by a nicely turned glass decanter full of colourless, clear fluid.

They filled the two sturdy goblets provided, looked hesitantly and expectantly at each other, and picked them up. With a murmured salutation, they clinked glasses and sipped the colourless clear fluid.

They looked at each other, quizzically, smiling softly, lost in the contemplation of the taste of their first French wine. Then one spoke.

"You know," he said, "if I didn't know this was de l'eau, I would almost swear it was water..."

... and I was conversing with Astrea by my side. tialities must be attained to. One of the sure tests for ascertaining the quality of students is that of scholarship examinations. Then those who are best equipped will have open to them paths leading to leadership positions.

Letter Forum

The Editor, McGill Daily.

Dear Sir,—A pamphlet, which is quoted in part, was circulated among the Freshettes of English II on Tuesday morning, the day before the elections for the President of the Women's Union. It said: "...candidates are apparently being judged more for their affiliations than for their respective merits. To be more explicit, votes have consistently been solicited on the basis of the fraternity affiliation of one of the candidates. On the other hand, the fact that the other candidate is not a member of any fraternity is being cited as proof that she is entirely unsuited for the position."

"For the past six years, at least, the President of the Women's Union has been a member of the fraternities, elected by the fraternities, and in the main, for the fraternities. This is election of a candidate to a position by a definite pressure group in a definitely high-pressure manner."

"It is in no way our aim here to attack the institution of campus fraternities. We wish merely to point out that 'non-fraternity' is not, and never has been, synonymous with 'anti-fraternity'. In fact, it is probable that a student bound by no fraternity ties is able to give far more attention to the campus as a whole without favouring any one particular interest group."

"There is also the evidence that rumors have been spread by a persistent whispering campaign, rumors about one of the candidates who may vote in today's elections. It is obviously impossible for fraternity women alone to "swing" the election for President of the Women's Union.

b) Last year's president of the Women's Union was Marjorie M. Cross, a non-fraternity woman.

c) Moreover an hour meeting once a week is all the time fraternities demand of their members.

Music Notes

A truly fine rendition of Schumann's Concerto for violoncello and orchestra was the highlight of last night's concert of Les Concerts Symphoniques de Montreal. With Emil Cooper as the guest conductor, and the distinguished Russian cellist, Gregor Piatigorsky as the soloist, the interpretation of the Schumann was played both with infinite feeling and understanding for this very difficult work. The whole concerto is written in the form of a conversation between the solo instrument and the orchestra. Mr. Piatigorsky showed his great artistic feeling in the interpretation of singing quality of the broad theme which introduces the first section of the one-movement work. During the cadenza the soloist has an excellent opportunity to show his technical skill; this Mr. Piatigorsky did to such an extent, the audience was left in almost breathless excitement, when the orchestra concluded the sequence.

After the intermission, which was preceded by a short encore, a March by Prokofiev, played by Mr. Piatigorsky, the orchestra and soloist played the beautiful Hebrew Rhapsody "Schelomo" by Bloch. When Bloch wrote: "It is the Jewish soul that interests me, the complex, glowing, agitated soul, that I feel vibrating throughout the bible..." he certainly followed his interest in "Schelomo", for through the whole work vibrate the tragedies, the wisdom, the joys of the Jewish people.

Last night's program opened with the rather heavy Goedicke orchestration of the C minor Bach Passacaglia. In this reviewer's opinion, there is still a great deal lacking in the Concerts Symphoniques orchestra's interpretation of Bach. From the simple statement of the theme, which furnishes the variations throughout the work, it was felt that one was listening to a work far too heavy, far too pompous to represent the greatest of all masters of music. This fact was even more vivid when the next item, Prokofiev's Classical Symphony, was heard. Here the orchestra seemed far more in their element, the mathematical genius of Bach needs far more care in its interpretation than a Montreal orchestra has ever taken.

The final item on last night's program was the noisy and long-winded "Francesca da Rimini," by Tchaikovsky, which, following the Bloch, as it did, seemed like the tottering of a bear, where angels had just trod. —C. U. W.

Newfoundland Club Meets Tonight in Grill Room

The Newfoundland Club will hold its first meeting of the session tonight at 8.15 p.m. in the Grill Room of the Union.

A brief business period will open the meeting and will be followed by short talks to be given by the Honorary President, H. G. Hatcher and by Lt.-Col. Chas. Arams.

The latter half of the evening will include a community sing-song and games after which refreshments will be served.

All Newfoundland students attending McGill and all nurses from Newfoundland at the various city hospitals are invited, the executive announced.

IN ANCIENT TIMES

The thickness of the sole was a characteristic of the "Crepida" noble. This sole was often two inches thick and it was made entirely of cork. Greek women, in order to increase their height, often exaggerated this fashion of the day to such an extent that they could walk only when aided by their ladies-in-waiting.

Red Cagers Meet Southwestern "Y" Tonight

McGill Cagers Play 1st Game Of New Season

1st Tilt of Doubleheader Scheduled This Evening On Currie Gym Floor

2 Other Matches

Davidon, Deacon Curren To Furnish Backbone For Local Squad

The McGill Senior Basketball team will face the Southwestern "Y" squad in the top half of a doubleheader tonight at 8 p.m. in the Pine Ave. Gym. This will be the curtain-raiser of the local basketball season and will form part of a round-robin tournament to determine if there are any sufficiently strong Intermediate entries to fill out the present three team senior league. At the moment the loop consists of the Redmen, Georgians and the Combines, a fusion of the old Oilers and Rocklands.

Last year the "Y" finished high in the standings of the Intermediate loop and if they show sufficient strength in this tourney, an invitation to enter Senior company will be tendered to them.

Coach Van Wagner

Coach Van Wagner has been drilling his stalwarts steadily for the past three weeks, and although many players have been busy attending rugby practices, the other performers flashed mid-season form in the last few scrimmages. The squad has been fortunate to retain four players from last years powerful squad and four freshmen medes have added considerably to the strength of the team by virtue of their experience and general floor knowledge.

The starting line-up was announced last night by Mr. Van Wagner, who had considerable trouble in choosing 10 men from the large group who have been working out with the squad. However, those not chosen for tonight's tilt will be kept in reserve in case some men are forced to withdraw due to pressure of studies or injury.

Ross Deacon

At centre the Redmen will have lanky and springy Ross Deacon. Deacon has had vast experience on the intermediate team and was a member of last year's quintet where he showed polish around the basket in addition to his all around good play.

On the forward line with Deacon there will be George Davidon of last year's squad and smooth Vic Curran of swimming fame. Davidon has been an exponent of tricky basketball throughout his long high school and brief college career while Curran is well-developed and polished player who has also done some instructing in the States.

Russ Harms

The guards are two experienced and dangerous players and have shown great ball-carrying ability during the last few workouts. They

McGill Grads Beat Eng. II In Softball Tilt Yesterday

Yesterday's Intermural softball game ended in a victory for the Graduates who upset the second-year Plumbers by a score of 11-7. Although the score does not indicate a close game, both teams were quite evenly matched. This is proven by the fact that the score was tied at 6-6 until the last inning.

The Engineers held the edge in the hitting, getting seven hits as compared with three for the Grads. However weaknesses in the Plumber's infield contributed a number of errors which cost them the game.

This game was the first of three to be played this week. The other two are as follows:

Commerce vs. Med. 1, today.
Arts-Science Blacks vs. Eng. IV, tomorrow.

McGill Outing Club to Hold Horseback Ride Tuesday

An organized horse-back riding party will be held next Tuesday afternoon, November 14, under the auspices of the McGill Outing Club. Those interested in this popular pastime will have ample opportunity to satisfy their desires by registering for the event immediately.

The ride will last for two hours and will cover a route that has not yet been announced by the M.O.C. The cost will be $1.50 per person for the two hours and those wishing to take part must notify Nona Rust of Trudie MacIntosh at R.V.C. before next Monday.

Starting time for the ride is 2.30 and the party will leave R.V.C.

Outside Athletics Is Main Topic At SAC Meeting

Hopes for Turnouts At Hockey Games, Spirit Revival Voiced

The question of students playing for outside teams in competitive athletics was a main topic of discussion at the Students Athletics Council meeting held in the Union last night. After viewing the question from many angles, it was decided to recommend to the Athletics Advisory Board the cases of four men who desire to play for teams off the campus. Approval of the moves was given provided that amateur standing was retained, and the players would not compete against McGill.

A Festival committee report read by chairman Dick Balfour told of the success of the dance sponsored by the body. No less than 1,314 persons attended, which constituted some kind of record. The committee for the Festivals to be held in the future will include Balfour, John Dohan, George Frank, Bruce Ward, Merelle Cayford and Allan Knight.

A strong recommendation was made to the Advisory Athletics Board that a C.I.A.U. meeting be held in the very near future, with a view to competitions between college teams.

N.D.H.L. Squad.

The entry of a McGill team in the National Defence Hockey League came in for some discussion, and the first game was announced as being next Monday evening at the Forum against the Army. It was hoped that larger turnouts from the student body would be forthcoming. Every fourth week will be McGill night, and the band, Scarlet Key and Red Wings will be in attendance.

Approval was given the idea of having a pin, rather than a first-grade letter awarded to winners. Such a pin would be worn on the lapel and might be of greater use in later years.

The report on the meetings of the Intramural Athletics Council was read by its president, George Frank. Plans for the future were outlined and approved. It was decided to resurrect trophies for the winners of Interfaculty competition, said trophies to remain in the buildings of the winning faculties.

S.A.C. Representative

Ken Walter was elected to the Athletics Advisory Board as an S.A.C. representative. This will give the students three votes on the board, the others going to John Costigan and Bruce Ward.

Hopes that the university would have a ski team for competition were raised. The question was referred to John Dohan, member of last year's ski team, who will see if there is sufficient response and interest. If so, the question of a coach will be looked into, with the hope of reviving McGill's name in competitive ski circles.

After Queen Elizabeth had got safely across the puddle on which Raleigh had put his cloak, she said, "I am afraid I have soiled your coat." Raleigh replied in French: "Mon Dieu et mon droit," which means "My God, you're right."

INTRAMURAL ATHLETICS

We would like to draw the attention of all sport-minded students to the extensive Intramural athletics programme on the campus. Too few students, we believe, are aware of the fact that they can take part in practically any sport here at McGill. Both indoor and outdoor sports will afford unlimited recreation and enjoyment to those who come out for them.

Hay Finlay, Athletics Manager, outlined the Intramural plans for the current session at a meeting of the Intramural Athletics Council held recently. Several events, of course, have already been run off, including the tennis and golf tourneys. Many other activities, however, are either being run now or are planned for the future.

HOCKEY NOTES

The big item on the agenda that everyone is eagerly awaiting is hockey. Those who were here last year will remember the phenomenal success enjoyed by the Intramural Hockey League. The puck programme for this season is an ambitious one, and, if properly carried out, should provide a bang-up year. It is planned to have 18 teams playing in an Interclass loop: seven from Arts and Science, five from Engineering, and one team representing each of the faculties of Commerce, Medicine, Dentistry, and Law. Only one N.D.H.L. player will be permitted to compete for each squad. The games will be played from five to seven p.m. daily, on the two McTavish rinks, and the regular schedule will be followed by a playoff series to determine the league champ. All playoff fixtures, in contrast to the ordinary games, will take place on Forum ice. After this Interclass play has been completed, an Interfaculty loop will probably be organized.

CAGE PLANS

Intramural basketball will begin in about a week's time. It will be run on more or less the same plan as the hockey, with an Interclass league being run first, and then an Interfaculty loop. Coach Van Wagner stated that the whole idea of these Intramural leagues is to have as many students as possible taking part. Arts and Science will enter more than one team in the basketball loop, but the strength of the different teams will be distributed as evenly as possible. Basketball games will be played at 5.15 p.m., and anyone who is interested in refereeing the games should see Mr. Van Wagner at the Gym.

The softball loop, under the guidance of Em Orlick, is now in full swing. As soon as play is completed, the basketball league will get under way.

The inauguration of the swimming programme for the year was marked last week by the excellent aquatic display put on by the McGill Swimming Clubs at the N.D.G. Community Pool. Swimming competitions will be started when the C.A.S.A. meets are held this month.

INDOOR SPORTS CLUBS

The many different clubs at the Gym form a very important and integral part of the McGill sports scene. A large number of students have always participated in the weightlifting, boxing, wrestling, judo, fencing, gymnastics, squash, and badminton clubs. Every one of these activities is an excellent body-builder and conditioner. All students are urged very strongly to make full use of the facilities at their Gym. All you have to do to join one of these clubs is to turn out for practices at the hour stated in "The Daily."

With all the sports that are offered to students at McGill, it is hoped that this session will feature a marked revival of both Intramural Athletics and college spirit.

Pro Football No Soft Life As Star Lies Down In Game

Most people are inclined to think that the life of a professional football player is all milk and honey. Well, one man who thinks differently is Bill Hewitt, veteran star of the Chicago Bears and Philadelphia Eagles. Bill took the opportunity to let off steam in an article in the Saturday Evening Post, and described his feelings as an effort to present a view of the game as seen by the "average player," which is merely one of the many expressions which all mean "a very hungry guy."

In the year of Bill's graduation from the University of Michigan, 1932, wealth and fame on the football gridiron came to the Hewitt domicile in the form of an offer to play for the Chicago Bears at one hundred dollars per sixty minutes of work which is far from the proverbial hry.

Salaries Slim
At this point rather a startling truth was shoved forcibly under Bill's nose. Red Grange and Chris Cagle had made fat salaries—yet to come were Whizzer White's fifteen thousand dollar season with Pittsburgh, Davey O'Brien's ten grand year in Philly, Sammy Baugh's seventeen thousand per in Washington. Bill read owner George Halas' letter again, and it still said one hundred dollars per game.

Thus, one salient fact emerged. The average professional footballer is the poon of the big league sports. Less than half of all the players in the National League receive salaries commensurate with those paid in other sports with big box office receipts, and the great bulk of contracts call for from one hundred to one hundred and seventy-five dollars per game, amounting to about a thousand or twelve hundred dollars in a season.

All this is food for thought, but Continued on Page Four.

Harriers To Cover Three Miles in Cross-country Run

The long-awaited Interfaculty Harrier race is scheduled to take place tomorrow afternoon at 5.15. The race, for which a number of contestants have been training, will begin and end at the Sir Arthur Currie Memorial Gymnasium. The runners will cover three miles, following a course which leads through the mountains.

At 4.15 of the same afternoon, high school harriers will attempt the same run. They, too, have been training for the event for some time.

As yet, there are not many entries for the race, but any enthusiasts who have not already done so, may still enter by signing the notice board in the Gym. Harrier racing is said to be an excellent conditioner, especially for skiers.

Former Olympic Star Is Featured At Swim Practice

All Women Swimmers Encouraged to Attend Demonstration Tonight

The regular swimming practice held at the Knights of Columbus Pool from 4-6.30 every Wednesday offers a unique feature this week. Katherine Rawls Thompson, the Olympic diver and swimmer, is to demonstrate racing dives and also racing turns. This is an opportunity that all girls who are interested in speed swimming should take the advantage of. Mrs. Thompson has very kindly offered to do this at least twice—at 4.30 and again at 5.30—so that everyone, even those with labs, should be able to see her.

It is hoped that an open meet will be held on Wednesday, November 22nd, so all those with intentions of participating should be doing some practice.

Girls also are to be reminded that regular Life-Saving Classes are held at 5.00 p.m. every Wednesday. There are three instructors so there is plenty of opportunity for everybody who signed up. If you do intend to take the course please come this Wednesday for sure.

Remember swimming is an all round sport that is plenty of fun for everybody. Make sure that you get your share of it.

Rugby Matches Scheduled For Saturday Afternoon Tilts End Season

In Montreal, St. Annes

Ralph Johnson To Bolster Second McGill Squad

This Saturday will mark the end of the football season at McGill as both the first and second Red and White rugby teams go in to action against Verdun and Macdonald respectively. At Molson's Stadium the Red first team will face the Grads in the final game of the Q.R.F.U. schedule that will determine which team will gain second place in the final standings. Out on the green pastures at St. Anne de Bellevue Johnny Bennett's "second team" will be out for revenge as they take the field against the Green and Yellow of Macdonald College.

Yesterday Coach Doug Kerr ran his football charges through a light signals practice in preparation for the coming tilts. A very good turnout pleased the coaches who are anxious that both teams end their seasons with a win. The footballers also had their pictures taken for the McGill Annual before the practice began.

Last Game

In what will be their last game of the season the boys of the second team will be out to avenge the defeat they suffered at the hands of Mac last Tuesday at Molson's Stadium. At that time the Green and Yellow, led by their star kicker, Wallen, won a close 8-6 victory over the Redmen in a hard fought battle. However, in the first tilt between these two squads the Red and White emerged the victors, 5-0, on "Red" McCavour's touchdown.

Wallen's Kicks

By what has been seen in the past two games both teams seem to be evenly matched and another close tussle is expected. The main difficulty for the McGill squad in

Inter-Class Basketball To Get Under Way Soon

Coach Van Wagner announced today that an Inter-Class basketball tourney will commence in the very near future. This tournament will be a round-robin affair, teams being grouped in fours and playoffs taking place between the winners of each group. The Intramural sports representative of each faculty is in charge of forming teams from each class so that all those interested in playing basketball should watch the notice boards for announcements.

them will come, not only the women who will lead in the political and cultural life of the very near future, but also the women who will be the wives of the men who lead in the post-war work.

I promise to work with the Students' Executive Council in the best interest of the women students and the student body at large. Student self-government is training for democracy. And it places a great responsibility on those elected to lead it. That responsibility should neither be neglected nor abused.

Incidentally, I want to continue and extend the number of afternoon concerts that have been sponsored by the Women's Union in the past. Besides, there is plenty of student talent on the campus, and I would like to see it also organized into concerts.

In all things, I believe in seeking to fulfill the aims of the constitution of the Women's Union. . . . I quote: "to promote the social, cultural and recreational interests of the women students and to encourage understanding and comradeship among its members."

Finally, I would like to say this. I realize the high standard of character that has marked the Women's Union presidents in the past. And I am very much aware of the honor you have done me by nominating me for this position. I thank you.

RENOVATIONS: Last spring the university agreed to paint the Women's Common Room in the Arts Building on the condition that the women students reupholster and refurnish it. I would like to call attention to the fact that the drapes have already been bought and with this year's budget allowing $200 for improvements, I should like to continue this work in making it a comfortable lounge for women students.

A recommendation has been made that the executives of the Women's Union and the M.W.S.A.A. should work as a more coordinated unit, and I feel it would be possible for me to put this into effect, as I know the workings of the M.W.S.A.A. through personal experience. I should aim to promote social functions in conjunction with the M.W.S.A.A. such as last year's Athletic Festival; and also to promote intellectual pursuits by coordinating the various clubs and societies on the campus.

In connection with furthering cultural interests it has been suggested that the Union begin its own small local art gallery in the common room of R.V.C. If elected I would suggest that we begin by the Union purchasing, each year, a painting by a well known Canadian Artist, and in that way making some contribution of permanent value.

It has also been recommended that we should bring more guest speakers in contact with the women students, but I feel that the majority of these speakers, who would interest us in particular, are already covered by the People's Forum and the Women's Canadian Club, and would require too large a financial backing for us to meet. Therefore, I believe it would be of more value if the Union's executives, the Clubs, and societies notified the Daily when such speakers are coming.

WAR COUNCIL: I feel the Women's Union could be of material aid in sponsoring the programs of the War Council, such as the Amalgamated Charities Campaign and the I.S.S. drives, but, I also feel that as a representative of the Women's Union I would try to influence the council to look more into the future in terms of community service during the rehabilitation stages of the post-war period. Suggestions for this will come from the Round Table conferences which form a substantial part of my prospective program.

WAR SERVICE: The compulsory feature of the War Service Program in previous years proved to defeat the purpose of this organization in many aspects. When, however, the Senate, at the request of the Women's Union, established it on an independent basis last spring it led to a more effective program where each student is now made to feel her own responsibility not only in furthering the war effort, but in the social readjustments of the post-war period. The Women's Union has been efficient in this administration and has made it a definite success. It now proves to be a valuable instrument in wartime service, as well as an asset to all undergraduate students who participate. I propose to further these objectives and to make the War Services a vital aspect in the lives of every woman student on campus.

I am delighted to say that the McGill Daily has shown a keener interest this year in the Women's Union by suggesting a Women's Editor to write up its special features and to do its publicity. Its cooperation has been a great improvement over previous years and it would be my purpose to further these good relations. It is also my hope that this year's executive bring the students and faculty closer together and this would only be possible if the students feel at liberty to bring forth their own concrete suggestions before the Women's Union Executive.

In closing I should like to repeat my intentions that if elected to the Presidency of the Women's Union I would aim to give to the Union an efficient administration and I would meet all situations and problems objectively with the purpose of representing the best interests of all women students on campus.

Pro Football No Soft Life

that's all it was food for. Since Bill had to eat, he had to play, and play he did for six long years.

Brooklyn Tears

Pro ball is rough, real, smart, and it is for keeps. It's more skillful than the college game and played just as earnestly, and, believe it or not, coaches sometimes use the tear jerk between halves hokum supposedly peculiar to the college game, and what's more get away with it—sometimes. Bill mentions the day in Brooklyn, when the not so very good Bears played the somewhat worse Dodgers. At half time the Bears held the wrong end of a 21-0 score. The coach, lately a father, addressed the squad in a voice charged with emotion: "Men, ask yourselves this question. How would you feel if you went home tonight and bent over that crib, and the little fella looked up at you and said, 'Daddy, did you lay down in Brooklyn?' The result, of course, was, that every few minutes during the second half someone would say, in a coy little voice, 'Daddy, did you lay down in Brooklyn?' and the whole squad would roll on the ground howling with laughter, with the Dodgers stepping daintily over them for touchdowns.

In any event, in several seasons of play, Bill jacked his average game salary up precisely seventeen dollars and twenty cents. He found out, moreover, that college man or no, jobs came tough, and at the beginning of the grid season he was always back. Because a man plays football, he can't get a job, and because he can't get a job he must play football.

Baugh Good

Sammy Baugh is perhaps the only pro who ever made a really paying proposition of the game, and this was due to a rare specialization of talents which made him indispensable to his team.

Bill got up to $130 per game with the Bears, then went to the Philadelphia Eagles at $200 per game, and at the end of his third season made $230 per game.

Bill summed up briefly what he got out of pro football,—a wariness of people through years of insincere back slapping, a need to fight the conviction that the world is phony. It goes without saying that Bill would not be back in pro ball this year, were it not for the war. Now's the time to play pro ball, when you can practise at night, and hold a good job during the day.

are Russ Harms and Leo Rosentsveig. The former is a Med student with considerable speed and a good shot while the latter, won the most valuable player award last year, which speaks for itself.

The second game will feature the Georgians who meet the young, but highly touted Y.M.H.A. Juniors. The Georgians have lost most of their last year's stars but will still field a strong club. The "Y" club who cleaned up the city intermediate and Eastern Canada Junior titles last season have not suffered any player losses and will field a formidable quintet.

Two Other Games

In the adjoining small section of the Gym, two other games will be played concurrently with those on the larger floor but as yet the participants are indefinite. The following teams are listed in the initial schedule: R.C.A.F. St. John's, Navy, Canada Car, and Ordnance Corps.

dent body at the University to help returned servicemen to readjust themselves to civilian life.

Little knowledge was professed as to the effect of the war upon men and women in the armed services apart from the conclusion that the effect of seeing other ways of life and other nations must have a very broadening effect, while the hardships and training undergone would materially increase esprit de corps and self-reliance. Wartime conditions were seen to bring about a certain degree of cynicism among students owing to the indecisive attitude of the government, and also to militate against a high standard of academic work, both as a result of the time taken up by military training, and owing to the constant strain and uncertainty under which students must work in wartime.
